Maryland State Archives

Genealogy research in Maryland

About the Archives

The Hall of Records, predecessor of the Maryland State Archives, was created as an independent agency in 1935, charged with the collection, custody, and preservation of the official records, documents, and publications of the state

About the Archives

We are the central depository for government records of permanent value- such as land, birth, death, divorce, etc.

The state archives only automatically acquires government created records. Our Special Collections department collects donated personal records

Primary and Secondary Sources

Primary sources provide a first-hand account of an event or time period. They represent original thinking, and reports or events. These sources are usually created at the time the events occurred, but they can also include sources that are created later

Ex: Letters, diaries, wills, original court records

Secondary sources involve analysis, interpretation, or evaluation of primary sources. They often attempt to describe or explain primary sources

Ex: Biographies, general histories

Overview of Collections

Vital Records: Birth, Death, and Marriage

Court Records: Civil and Criminal

Land Records: Deeds, Plats

Visiting the Archives

Ouick Links

September 1, 2021

The Maryland State Archives welcomes both appointments and walk-in visits in our public search room Tuesdays through Fridays from 8:30am to 4:30pm.

While walk-in visits are permitted, appointments are strongly encouraged. Benefits of a confirmed appointment include a reserved desk and computer, direct assistance from an Archivist, reduced wait times, advance retrieval of collection materials, and most importantly, a guarantee that your record will be on site. Request an Appointment

Please note, we will continue to wear masks for your protection and we ask that you continue to do so as well when visiting the search room.

We are continuing to offer remote service as well, and you may always:

- Place copy orders online. You may order a certified copy of any unrestricted document generally required for legal needs, or an uncertified copy of a digitized birth, death or marriage record for reference purposes.
- Contact us for research assistance or with any questions at msa.helpdesk@maryland.gov or 410-260-6487
- Access digital records from home on our website, including What's New Online, our training videos, digital resources and research guides providing details on how to find our most searched record types.

Thank you.

For Death records after 2010, contact the Maryland Division of Vital Records at (410) 764-3038

Introduction

To find a record, please note the record must be 10 years old or older, and you'll need to use the archives' search room computers. Request an appointment so that our staff can best assist you. Appointments are strongly encouraged. Benefits include: no wait time for help or for a workspace, ability to quickly ask an Archivist any questions, and most importantly a guarantee that your record will be on site. Visitors may also walk-in without an appointment.

What can I do from home?

You can search indexes. If you do not know the location of the Death, then you'll want to find the index in order to find the county or city of Death. An index also provides the information needed by our staff to locate your record.

A list of indexes can be found within the Find a Death Record section near the bottom of this page. There are also instructions related to the variations of indexes that you may see.

What years do we have Death records?

We can provide Death records from 1875 (Baltimore City) and 1898 (Maryland Counties) to 2010depending upon the location of the Death in Maryland. For earlier years, please go to the 'Tips for Hard to Find Death Records' page.

Should I Place an Order or Find a Record myself?

Place an Order

. We are not able to take orders for records after 2010. See note above.

Probate Records

What are probate records?

Maryland's probate records range from major records such as wills, inventories, and accounts to less well known documents such as renunciations, petitions, and indentures. Maryland probate records start in 1634.

- Will: A document in which a person states what should happen to their property after their death
- Inventory: A list of property in a person's estate when they pass away
- Administration Account: Information on who received what from the estate. Often this lists payment of debts and probate fees, but also the names of heirs receiving whatever is left over after the settling of debts.

Introduction

Maryland's probate records range from major records such as wills, inventories, and accounts to less well known documents such as renunciations, petitions, and indentures.

What can I do from home?

You can search indexes. Certain time frames and counties may also have scans of original records available online. After you find the index, record the information it provides and use that information to find the record. Make sure to note all information available in the index.

What years do we have probate records?

From 1634 to 1777, records were kept at the provincial (colonial) level and at the county level. The records we have vary by year, county, and record type. It is important find the index first, in order to then find the record you want.

What do I do if I am unsure of the county?

For a probate record from 1777 and earlier, click on any county name below, and use the indexes. The information you find in the index will provide information about the county. Use that information to find the record.

Legacy of Slavery in Maryland

This program seeks to preserve and promote the vast universe of experiences that have shaped the lives of Maryland's African American population. From the day that Mathias de Sousa and Francisco landed in St. Mary's county aboard the Ark and the Dove in 1634, Black Marylanders have made significant contributions to both the state and nation in the political, economic, agricultural, legal, and domestic arenas. Despite what often seemed like insurmountable odds, Marylanders of Color have adapted, evolved, and prevailed. The Maryland State Archives' Study of the Legacy of Slavery Staff invites researchers to explore all of these elements and more within its numerous source documents, exhibits and interactive online presentations.
