Features Author Kevin Cowherd on April 24 in Jarrettsville

Popular author will discuss his new book, "When the Crowd Didn't Roar: How Baseball's Strangest Game Ever Gave a Broken City Hope"

Jarrettsville, Md., March 20, 2019 -- As part of Harford County Public Library's Charm City Series, New York Times-bestselling author Kevin Cowherd discusses and signs his new book on Wednesday, April 24, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Jarrettsville Library, 3722 Norrisville Road in Jarrettsville. Advance registration is recommended by visiting HCPLonline.org.

"When the Crowd Didn't Roar: How Baseball's Strangest Game Ever Gave a Broken City Hope" is about the Orioles-White Sox game on April 29, 2015, the only Major League game ever played without fans. Baltimore was reeling from the devastating riots sparked by the death in police custody of Freddie Gray. The eerily quiet stadium was on lockdown for public safety and because police were needed elsewhere to keep the tense city from exploding anew.

After his remarks the evening of April 24, Cowherd will do a book signing, and a photo opportunity will be available. Books must be purchased in advance; they will not be available that evening. For those interested in purchasing a book, the publisher is offering a 40 percent advance discount (enter the code 6AS19):

Cowherd's book chronicles this unsettling contest, as well as the tragic events that led up to it and the therapeutic effect the game had on a troubled city. The story comes vividly to life through the eyes of city leaders, activists, police officials and the media who covered the tumultuous unrest on the streets of Baltimore. The ballplayers, umpires, managers and front-office personnel of the teams who played in this singular game as well as the fans who watched it from behind locked gates also share their experiences. In its own way, amid the uprising and great turmoil, baseball stopped to reflect on the fact that something different was happening in Baltimore and responded to it in an unprecedented way, making this the unlikely and strangest game ever played.

Cowherd is an award-winning sports columnist and features writer who worked for The Baltimore Sun for 32 years. He is the New York Times best-selling author of "Hothead," "The Closer" and four other baseball novels for young readers written with Cal Ripken Jr. He is also the author of four books of nonfiction, including "Way Down in the Hole: The Meteoric Rise," and "Tragic Fall and Ultimate Redemption of America's Most Promising Cop."

"Kevin Cowherd is such a popular author with Harford County Public Library customers," said Mary Hastler, CEO. "He has spoken at library events on numerous occasions and always draws an enthusiastic crowd. His new book chronicles a baseball game unlike any other, at a stadium that many of us have visited. We look forward to welcoming Kevin back to Harford County."

Harford County Public Library operates 11 branches located throughout Harford County. More than 1.6 million visitors use library services and resources each year. In 2018 Harford County Public Library was named one of America's Star Libraries for the eighth time by Library Journal. It was also the recipient of a 2018 Graphic Design USA American Inhouse Design Award. For more information, visit HCPLonline.org.
